Art

Sonne Küschnacht on Lake Zurich is far more than a traditional 4 star superior hotel. It is a boutique hotel that brings together design elements and art. The publicly accessible areas of the hotel house a carefully curated collection of renowned works from the Swiss and international art scene. Art is not staged, but understood as a natural part of the house, entering into a quiet dialogue with the historic architecture and contemporary design.

The curatorial concept follows the principle of integration. Art and space interact with one another without one dominating the other. This creates unexpected sight-lines, inspiring contrasts and an aesthetic experience that blends organically into the guests' stay.

The collection includes works by internationally renowned artists such as Andy Warhol and Julian Schnabel, whose unmistakable styles set strong visual accents. The portfolio is complemented by important Swiss artists, including Augusto Giacometti, one of the pioneers of modern painting in Switzerland, as well as Alois Carigiet, whose work holds significant art historical importance far beyond his illustrations. A work by Meret Oppenheim, one of the most important representatives of Surrealism, is also part of the collection.

A distinctive feature of the collection is its accessibility. The artworks can be experienced freely in the lobby, the three restaurants, the bar and other public areas, without any sense of threshold or museum like distance. The works are deliberately left
